THE ALUMNAE NEWS

Fifty years ago in 1906:

The following notice appeared: "The Students' Building at the Normal College was built by, and belongs to the students of that institution. It is nearing completion and will be ready for inspection next Friday night. The young ladies will let you see it for 75 cents and give you free admission to the Grand Jubilee Concert."

Newspapers throughout the state ran articles about the Concert and the Building. One headline read: "Students' Building Monument to Girls' Love and Devotion . . . How the Class of '09 gave a N. C. flag which cost $40 to the State Normal and Industrial College, and how the gift was the seed from which grew the $40,000 edifice which is the chief ornament of the Institution."

President McIver was reported to have said: "When they have completed this work, I must find some other absorbing interest for the girls, for there is nothing like a common object for bringing them near to each other, for fastening in them a sympathetic and co-operative spirit—the spirit that will make each one strive to benefit whatever community she shall enter when she leaves college, instead of being merely content with what she gets out of it."

Twenty-five years ago in 1931:

Using one set of actors to pull the strings of puppets, another to speak like puppets, and still another to be puppets, freshmen, under the direction of the Playlikers, showed an audience what it is like to put on a show with three separate casts.

Members of the faculty entertained the seniors with a progressive dinner in South Dining Hall. The annual event was the faculty tribute to the Senior Class. Fifty-four tables, decorated with red and white flowers, were set up, with five seniors and three members of the faculty sitting at each table. After each course, the faculty members progressed to other tables.

Jelly Leftwich and his Duke Blue Devils provided music for the Junior-Senior Dance (considered by most students the main social event of the year) in South Dining Hall. Approximately 450 people were served refreshments in West Dining Hall.

A group of members of Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi formulated plans for the organization of an honor society. About 20 members of the faculty formed the nucleus of the society.

THE ALUMNAE NEWS: published four times a year (October, January, April, July) by the Alumnae Association of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, Greensboro. Admitted as second-class matter at the postoffice in Greensboro, N. C., June 29, 1912. Single copies, 50 cents.

"Building College Gymnasiums . . . A Women's Gymnasium"

by ETHEL L. MARTUS
Department of Physical Education

Editor's Note: The Mary Channing Coleman Gymnasium at Woman's College was featured in the January 1956 issue of the Journal of Health—Physical Education—Recreation as an outstanding example of gymnasium facilities for women. Miss Ethel L. Martus, head of the Department of Physical Education, was asked to present the story about the construction of the building as an aid to professional people involved in the construction of similar facilities. The Alumnae are proud of this selection and national honor and "the story of the Mary Channing Coleman Gymnasium."

The Mary Channing Coleman Gymnasium was constructed at the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina in 1950-52. Although this new building is a facility complete within itself, it can be considered an addition to the 30-year-old Rosenthal Gymnasium. An enclosed connecting passage makes possible the operation of the two gymnasiums as a single unit.

The need for enlarged facilities was evident to administrators, students, and University officials when it became apparent that the Rosenthal Gymnasium constructed for a student body of 800 women students could no longer accommodate the needs in physical education for a student body of 2,200. Perhaps the most thorough convincing of administrators and legislators was done by students who requested "more space for play," more "opportunities for co-recreation," more "laboratories for learning." Major students were especially eager to meet with Visiting Committees of the Board of Trustees, University officials, and legislative members in an effort to outline the need for enlarged facilities for the broadening of their professional preparation.

Annual and seasonal departmental programs such as "gym meet," tournaments, and intramural events were curtailed by limitations of space for players and spectators. No dressing areas were available for "dates," which limited the co-recreation program. The "old gymnasium" was literally "bursting at the seams." A far-sighted administration, alert to and in sympathy with progressive ideas of the department led the way in presenting the need of a new facility through the channels of state appropriation.

Woman's Philosophy

architect for the project. This was perhaps the most vital decision of our realization of a gymnasium for women students designed by women. Mr. Lowenstein's first official act as our architect was to call a meeting of his staff and the staff of the department of Physical Education for the purpose of defining the philosophy of the building. In the first stages of this planning, hours were spent in sharing with the architects and engineers our ideas of a woman's program of physical education as they were reflected in our dreams for facilities.

During the months and years of awaiting legislative action on budget requests, the staff had had opportunity to define and formulate ideas of function, beauty, and arrangement of teaching stations. Each staff member had drawn rough floor plans, and these many plans had been consolidated into a basic scheme. We knew what we wanted, and architectural experts were eager to advise us of ways in which sound construction could proceed.

We knew that the Mary Channing Coleman Gymnasium should be a building for women students—a functional and modern laboratory for learning, for growth, and for that developmental part of general education in higher education which emphasizes and uses the medium of physical activity; that the building should provide abundant opportunities for professional laboratory experiences for undergraduate and graduate women professional students; that varied facilities should be provided for recreation and for co-recreation; that this should be a building for women in which color, harmony, design, femininity, and ease of housekeeping should dominate constructional planning. The architectural staff accepted eagerly the challenge of a woman's philosophy for a woman's building.

Throughout the entire construction project, the architect and project supervisor were alert to our choices in regard to function, design, color, and furnishings. All available reference materials on building, planning, and construction were discussed with the architectural staff. Some visitations were made to other colleges and universities. The architect made available for our study current architectural journals, reference catalogues, and construction plans for other physical education facilities. Popular magazines, such as House Beautiful and House and Garden, were used for ideas.

The architect's office provided expert consultations on lighting, color, design, and other technical phases of construction. Samples of exterior and interior details were furnished for staff decisions on color and suitability. No major decision concerning the construction was made without consultation with the physical education staff. The complete understanding and co-operation of the architect and construction supervisor were of great importance to us in the realization of our plans.

Modern, Functional Plant

The Mary Channing Coleman Gymnasium combines a modern physical education plant with a functional, contemporary design. Exterior simplicity of detail is gained by face brick, concrete, and limestone. Main exterior features are cantilevered stairs, concrete canopies over windows, and the use of steel rigid frames over the gymnasium. Roughly, the building is the shape of a "T," two stories in height, except for the rear portion which is one story with an open, lighted, terrace (105 ft. x 120 ft.) above. The ground floor houses the following units: corrective laboratory, seminar rooms, examining room, first aid room, equipment rooms, camera room, dark room, library, staff offices, student lounge with efficiency kitchen unit, projection room and visual aids room, music room, costume and sewing room, two dance studios convertible into stage for dance concerts, bowling alleys, indoor golf area, three locker-shower-dressing rooms, basket room, facilities for janitor and matrons. The main floor consists of the entrance lobby, staff offices, conference room, reception room, record room, mimeograph room, lounge and dressing room for staff, equipment and storage rooms, main gymnasium floor, and outdoor terrace.

Design

In exterior design, the building is framed with re-inforced concrete beams and columns. Exterior walls are faced with sand-faced brick laid in common bond. All windows are set flush with exterior walls. Limestone trim is used throughout. Entrance floors and stairs are of North Carolina blue flagstone laid in random pattern. Exterior stairs are cantilevered from a central bearing wall. Main entrance doors are tempered plate glass. Windows are "fenestra" steel sash of projected type or awning type and are provided with steel-framed bronze screens.

In interior design, all partitions are brick. Ceilings are, in general, plastered with acoustical tile cemented to the plaster. The majority of walls are glazed brick, used in colors of gray, teal, green, yellow, and white. Glass block is used in various areas of the building. The entrance lobby is veneered with Virginia greenstone. Reception rooms and lounges are panelled with birch plywood. Dance studios, corrective laboratory, and main gymnasium have maple floors. Other floors are finished with Flexachrome plastic asbestos except for shower, drying, locker rooms, toilets, which have ceramic tile floors. Toilet partitions and shower stall walls are ceiling supported porcelain-enamelled steel in coral and gray.

Lounges are equipped with small efficiency kitchen units closed off by means of Modernfold doors. Other Modernfold doors are used at issue windows, as partition is in the dance studios, and at other areas in the building. Windows line the interior wall of the bowling alleys allowing view of alleys from interior corridor. Wall mirrors are used extensively in various rooms, especially in dance studios, corrective laboratories, and dressing rooms. All lights are recessed and flush with the ceilings. Heat is thermostatically controlled in each unit. A complete system of ventilation serves all inside rooms in the building. In the gymnasium, the unit ventilators will allow a complete air change every five minutes. In all locker rooms, exhaust ducts are located behind the lockers, thus assuring elimination of locker-room odors.

Most rooms in the building have built-in cork bulletin boards, bookcases, and cabinets. Closets are located in many areas for storage and cleaning equipment. Each staff member has a private office with a small adjoining waiting room. In each office are cork board, built-in book cases, closet, and storage cabinets. Office furniture is gray frosted walnut, and lounge furniture is rattan or modern natural wood. The Mary Channing Coleman Memorial room is located to the left of the entrance lobby. In this room are books donated by graduates and friends, Miss Coleman's library, papers, personal and professional mementos, such as her fellowship award from the AAHPER and the gavel she used as second woman president of the Association.

Multiple Use

Multiple use has been made of some teaching centers in the new building. The main floor is marked for basketball, volleyball, badminton, and tennis. The adjoining outside terrace carries the same markings and also recessed mountings for net posts. The main gymnasium and the outdoor terrace are equipped with a sound system with concealed microphones. The outdoor terrace is lighted for roller skating and dancing at night. An intercommunication system with 13 stations serves as a contact between teaching areas in the new building and the connecting gymnasium.

What We Like

For our purposes, this new facility has proved very satisfactory. It must be remembered that it is, in a sense, an addition to existent facilities and was planned with that supplementation in mind. After having worked in the building for over two years, the following details seem worthy of mention.

1. The use of glazed brick on all interior walls. This has kept housekeeping at a minimum and repair and maintenance very low.

2. Closets and storage space. There is an abundance of closets, storage space, and built in cabinets designed for the specific use for which each was intended. This makes housekeeping easy, and is one of our real joys in using the facility.

3. Architectural designs which simplify hygienic control of the environment. An example of one of the many features designed by the architect to meet our special requests is the ceiling hanging of all toilet and shower partitions which eliminates floor legs. Hoses and mops can quickly clean all shower and toilet areas.

4. The use of acoustic tile. Sound and noise elimination creates a quiet climate even though several classes may be in activity at the same time.

5. Color—flowers—planting boxes — comfort. Our students continue to be enthusiastic about the gymnasium which to them seems "beautiful, feminine, home-like, quiet, and functional."

6. Integration of outdoor areas with the indoor facilities. While athletic fields, golf course, and tennis courts are close to the site of the new building, three areas were planned along with the construction. The outdoor terrace adjoins the main gymnasium area and is usable with it; the golf putting green is adjacent to the indoor golf area; the outdoor dance terrace adjoins the dance studios and is usable for outdoor classes in modern dance, or for additional practice area in good weather.

What We Would Add

It is difficult to say what one would do if one had the opportunity to start over again. So much depends on factors inherent to the construction problems. We would probably use more glass windows on interior walls, especially adjacent to studios used for dance and for other activities which did not involve balls. We would also make a glass-walled observation deck in the passageway which connects the two gymnasiums. If we were to start again, we should certainly hope for the same kind of understanding from an administration, the same enthusiasm from students and staff, and the chance to have the same architect to assist us in the realization of our dreams.

names were requested by Woman's College. And under the sponsorship of Service League, a drive for boxes to be sent to European families was conducted.

A plan for awarding honors to graduating seniors in the degrees summa cum laude, magna cum laude, and cum laude was approved by the faculty. Averages required for the honors are summa, 3.96; magna, 3.60; and cum, 3.30.

To carry out a theme of "April Showers" for their annual class dance in Rosenthal Gymnasium, freshmen used decorations of giant pastel umbrellas overflowing with colorful flowers, multi-colored balloons forming flowers from the ceiling, and ivy-entwined white columns. The figure participants emerged from a rose arbor and formed a figure of an umbrella.

An Appraisal

On the recommendation of the Visiting Committee of the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina and in an effort to secure a true appraisal of administrative problems at Woman's College, the Board of Trustees at its meeting on February 27 requested Acting President of the University William Friday "to make a detailed investigation and report concerning the problems which he finds existing at Woman's College, together with a recommended plan of action for the solution of such problems, and to make a report of such findings . . .".

For the actual investigative work which the Board requested, Mr. Friday appointed the administrative staff of the Consolidated University: Vice-President William D. Carmichael, Acting Provost William Whyburn, and Dean W. W. Pierson of the University Graduate School. The group met at Woman's College with members of the faculty and administrative staff on March 8-13.

The report of the committee's work will be made by May 1 to Mr. Friday, who, subsequently, will report to the Visiting Committee of the Board.

In the news . . .

Carthage, N. C. . . . A juror arose in Moore County Superior Court and addressed the bench, "Your honor-ess . . ."

Susie Sharp, class of '28, North Carolina's only woman Superior Court judge, said later she had been called many things, but never that.

And Judge Susie, who is not averse to quaint expressions, added: "It sounded to me like he's hit on a right good expression, and I couldn't fault him for it."

The Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina have named the Home Economics Building at Woman's College "Mary Frances Stone Hall" in honor of Mary Frances Stone '47, whose tragic death occurred in an automobile accident in December, 1947.

Mary Frances, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Stone of Rockingham County, was an Home Economics major.

ALL tied-up!

Odds: 31 . . . Evens: 31. That was the score at the end of THE DAY and THE NIGHT, the first Department of Physical Education Day held on March 17 in honor of the department's graduates.

THE DAY: Festivities (three rings at one time) began at 11:15 in the morning . . . in the Dance Studio there was a Major-Graduate Forum, in the Coleman Memorial Room MFA and M Ed graduates had a meeting, and in the Faculty Lounge the Staff entertained parents.

The only "outside-the-gym" activity was a luncheon at the Home Economics Cafeteria at which Miss Martus was honored for her 25 years of service by her past and present students and staff.

The afternoon program included a Tennis Demonstration by Belmar Gunderson and Mary Slaughter, both nationally ranked amateur tennis players, Seniors, and Physical Education majors. Their match, by the way, ended all tied-up, too 6-6. Then Miss Kathryn Luttgens, staff member, and Myrna Breitbart, a Senior major, demonstrated with the first and seventh graders from Curry School "One Phase of Physical Education in Action." A one-minute volleyball practice for evening competition was followed by Methods and Materials 606 . . . a course which strangely enough could not be located in the College catalog, but which, it turned out, could be translated refreshments.

THE NIGHT: No better way could have been chosen to begin . . . a concert by the College BAND. With class banners and present and past students divided for "hysterical" competition into the odds and evens, the Band, directed by Miss Sara Halroyd of the Music faculty, set the tone . . . relays, basketball throw for distance, slow bicycle race, volleyball, bombardment . . . majors "made" pyramids, marched, and folk-danced. A "tinikling" (that's right, it's not "twinkling" misspelled) demonstration was given by Larlita Dinaso, a graduate student from the Philippines. (For an explanation of this demonstration see one of the people pictured below or Larlita or the Physical Education Staff.) During the Odd-Even graduates and undergraduates volleyball games, the Physical Education Staff disappeared . . . when the time came for their volleyball game with the graduates, they marched, dressed in black gym bloomers, with their hair "anchored" in place by black headbands. By the way, the graduates beat their teachers in the game!

THE NIGHT ended in a tie . . . a very legitimate one, quite appropriately for the first Department of Physical Education DAY.

THE DAY guests: Department of Physical Education graduates

Everyone who is able ought to help to create all the necessary supplies for his, or her, own needs, and a little more besides. . . . There is some one thing of which each person can be master. . . . The point is to do one thing the very best you know how. Be the best seamstress; make the best hat. This sort of person is frequently dubbed "crank", but it is, after all, the crank that turns the wheels, and if he has but one idea, he is ahead of most of his fellows. . . . There is no absolute failure where one has done one's very best. . . . One must learn to love the things that ought to be loved; to do the things that ought to be done; and one must never forget that all great things have small beginnings.

National Recognition

Miss Ethel Martus, head of the Department of Physical Education, was one of four outstanding figures in the Southern District of the American Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation, which were presented Honor Awards at the Association's annual meeting in Nashville, Tennessee. The awards are presented in recognition of contribution to the advancement of the Association's program.

Miss Martus's citation begins: "Ethel Martus has rendered meritorious service to her college, her state, and to her national association." It continues with praise for her contributions as head of the Physical Education Department, recognizing her "outstanding job of planning every detail of the new Mary Channing Coleman Gymnasium." "Under her leadership the graduate program, offering two degrees, has been initiated and has maintained the reputation held by the undergraduate program on the campus and nationwide."

Her contributions to the Association include: 1949 vice-president of the Southern District; advisory committee member of the North Carolina College for Teacher Education in health, physical education, and recreation; member of the curriculum committee of the North Carolina Association; and chairman (currently serving) of the committee on standards and evaluations, North Carolina College Conference.

Through her affiliation with the national section on women's athletics of the Association, she has helped shape the policies and rules for girls' sports throughout the country. She has been active within North Carolina in activities concerned with the professional preparation of teachers in health, physical education, and recreation.

Miss Martus, who came to Woman's College in 1931, became a full professor in 1948. She has served as a member of the curriculum committee, the honor committee, the advisory committee, and the graduate creative arts committee.

We Never Shall Forget..

Dr. Eugene W. Gudger

Editor's Note: Shortly before Dr. Gudger's death, an alumna said of him: "... he was at the College in my day and was a remarkable teacher. A scholar himself, he demanded and got scholarly performances from his students."

Dr. Eugene W. Gudger, internationally-known ichthyologist, and bibliographer, honorary curator emeritus of the American Museum of Natural History, and formerly head of the Science Department at Woman's College, died in Waynesville on February 19. He was 89 years old.

A world authority on fishes, Dr. Gudger was editor of the American Museum of Natural History's Index Volume of the Bibliography of Fishes, and he also edited the widely acclaimed Bashford Dean Memorial Volume on fishes. He devoted almost his entire adult life to the study of fishes, although he did not see the ocean until he was 36. He was the first scientist to observe and write about the strange breeding habits of the pike fish. He was also an expert on whales.

Dr. Gudger was the author of more than 300 articles on fishes. His name was one of 1,200 "starred" among the 13,000 names listed in "American Men of Science." His work brought him letters of acclaim throughout the world. During the summers from 1902 to 1911, he did research work on fish at the United States Marine Biological Laboratory at Beaufort. In 1907, he received a grant from the Carnegie Institute to carry out research on the goff-topsail catfish and from 1912 until 1915 was a research guest at the Carnegie Marine Laboratory in Florida. He was called to the American Museum of Natural History in New York in 1919, where he was asked to edit the tremendous volume of the Bibliography of Fishes, a work requiring four years to complete.

Until he retired and returned to Waynesville in 1953, he had remained extremely active and almost had to be forced off his job with the Museum of Natural History.

Although he spent only about one month a year in Waynesville and North Carolina before his retirement, Dr. Gudger maintained an avid interest in the activities of the section and of North Carolina in general.

A Bequest

"During my school days at NCCW (the old Normal) Dr. McIver impressed on my mind the fact that those who have had the advantage of a college education are under an everlasting obligation to those who have been less fortunate to help them get a broader vision. So I have tried to spare neither time nor energy in helping as best I could some of the underprivileged of our state." . . . So wrote Pearl Wyche '03 in 1927 and so she lived.

She was the first welfare worker to serve North Carolina industrial communities. She began her work with Cane Mills in the Proximity and White Oak sections in 1903 after her graduation from the College, and at the time of her retirement in 1951, she was head of the Welfare Department of Cane Mills Corporation.

She died in May, 1954. She never forgot her "everlasting obligation." An item in her will reads: "I give and bequeath the sum of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) to THE WOMAN'S COLLEGE OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA, Greensboro, N. C. While it is not my intention to bind the said college regarding the use to which it shall put said gift; nevertheless, I suggest that the said sum be used as a loan fund to assist worthy young women toward an education."

We never shall forget . . . Pearl Wyche.

Dean Mossman . . .

Gardner Award Winner

Miss Mereb Mossman, Dean of Instruction and Professor of Sociology at Woman's College, is the winner of the eighth annual O. Max Gardner Award. She has been adjudged by the Trustees of the Consolidated University of North Carolina as the faculty member of the University who has made the "greatest contribution to the welfare of the human race" during the current scholastic year. The late Mr. Gardner, former Governor of North Carolina, provided for this award, which includes an engraved citation and a check for the annual income from a $25,000 trust fund, in his will.

Former Lieutenant Governor H. P. Taylor of Wadesboro, chairman of the Trustees' Award Committee (members: Mr. O. Max Gardner, Jr., Mr. C. Knox Massey, Mrs. R. S. Ferguson, Mr. J. Spencer Love, and Mr. B. S. Royster), presented this citation at the annual dinner to which the faculties of the three units of the University were invited:

"Mereb Ethna Mossman, a lady beloved by both Town and Gown, has brought to these two worlds the feminine gifts of gentleness, patience, and intuitive insight to the betterment of both.

"She is and has been the kindly teacher of youth, the understanding administrator, the inspiration of struggling young instructors, the support and comfort of weary older teachers, and a light to all of them. Business and industry have turned to her for advice; the poor and friendless have found in her a friend; and many movements for social betterment have found her in the ranks.

"As a creative artist in human lives, Mereb Mossman has written her signature large upon her college, the university, the community, the state, and the nation itself. The world is better because this unassuming woman has lived and worked among us.

"So it is that Mereb Ethna Mossman by the unanimous vote of the Board of Trustees has been adjudged to be that member of the faculty of the Consolidated University of North Carolina who in the current scholastic year has made the greatest contribution to the welfare of the human race."

Dean Mossman has taught at Woman's College since 1937 and has been Dean of Instruction since 1951. Previously she served as a social worker in Chicago, taught sociology at Gilling College in China for six years and there headed and developed a School of Social Work.

Since coming to North Carolina, Dean Mossman, who was Greensboro's "Woman of the Year" in 1954, has been prominent in the work of numerous social agencies and institutions. She is a past president of the North Carolina Chapter of the American Association of Social Workers. She has served as President of the Greensboro Council of Social Agencies, and has served on the boards of the Y.W.C.A., the Guilford County Mental Hygiene Society, the Community Chest, and the Council of Social Agencies. She also has served on the board of the North Carolina Conference for Social Service and of the North Carolina Children's Home Society. For four years she was a member of the National Committee on preprofessional Education of the American Association of Schools of Social Work. She is currently serving on the executive committee of the governing board of Greensboro's Cone Memorial Hospital.

Dean Mossman is the third member of the Woman's College faculty to receive the O. Max Gardner Award; Miss Louise Alexander received it in 1949, and Dr. Franklin H. McNutt, in 1954.

The McIver Building Story

A dramatic incident in McIver Building has brought sharply into focus the longstanding need for a new or completely renovated classroom building at Woman's College. On February 21, 1956, two sections of plaster fell from the high ceiling of Room 215. No one was injured. The room was closed immediately.

With the preparation of each biennial budget during the past six years, the College made vigorous efforts to get McIver replaced with a more modern structure. Prior to each General Assembly (1951, 1953, 1955), members of the Advisory Budget Commission have toured McIver Building so that they could see conditions at first hand.

Some fifteen years ago engineers from the State Budget Bureau decided that, although McIver Building was structurally sound insofar as its supporting timbers were concerned, it would be more economical to replace it than to renovate.

In July, 1952, the State Insurance Commission reported that conditions in the building, which was constructed in 1908, were deemed hazardous to life: "If a fire were to commence in the basement while a large number of classes were in progress, this department sees no way in the world that all students would be able to escape from the building before the open interior stairs had enabled the fire, smoke, and lethal fumes to engulf the entire building with the inevitable loss of many lives." In his reply to the Insurance Commission, Chancellor Edward K. Graham expressed grave concern over the condition of the building.

During the 1953 session of the General Assembly the letter from the Insurance Commission, along with other data by University officials, was presented. The Legislature was asked for $829,000 for the construction of buildings which would contain classrooms for the Liberal Arts and Social Science Departments.

Requests for a new residence hall and classroom buildings were turned down by the General Assembly. $10,000 was appropriated for the construction of new exits, and with this appropriation a wide fire escape was installed.

In August, 1955, College officials received a report from Assistant Chief F. V. Trulove of the Greensboro Fire Department: "Conditions (in McIver Building) constitute a definite hazard from the loss of life by fire." He further stated "that the present use of this building should be discontinued until such time as it meets recommendations as set forth in a letter from Kenneth P. Dixon, engineer and deputy commissioner of Insurance, State of North Carolina, dated August 21, 1952."

Following the collapse of part of the ceiling in Room 215, Chancellor Graham appointed a special committee under Mr. John C. Lockhart, Business Manager, "to make an inquiry and report on what happened and why, and also to make such recommendations as were deemed necessary to minimize further risk."

A thoroughgoing safety check of the entire building was immediately undertaken, both by the Department of Buildings and Grounds and by engineers from the Budget Bureau. On February 24, the entire third floor was promptly closed and classes were assigned on an emergency basis to other buildings. The Budget Bureau, through Mr. Frank B. Turner, Engineer for the Bureau, presented an extensive list of precautionary measures to minimize the risk of fire and falling plaster. These recommendations included, among others, removal of ceilings where cracks and sagging had been noted, elimination of smoking in the building, elimination of all electric loads not essential to lighting classrooms, and constant patrol in order to detect any further cracking which might become a hazard. All recommendations were immediately adopted and put into effect through Mr. Lockhart.

Efforts will be renewed to secure from the Legislature an appropriation for the earliest possible replacement of the building.

For the second semester a policy of "open stacks" for all undergraduate students has been established for the Library. The policy will be on a trial basis for one semester. Students will no longer be asked to obtain a "stack permit card" or special permission to go into the stack areas.

WUNC-TV, the educational television station of the University of North Carolina, has been selected by the National Association of Christians and Jews as one in a selected group of winners of awards "For Outstanding Contributions to the Cause of Brotherhood." WUNC-TV is the only television station among the 30 winners from all divisions of the media of mass communication in the nation.

The University station was chosen because of its pioneering in the field of human relations. During the summer (1955) the station presented the first TV seminar on human relations in the nation. The seminar, "New Horizons in Human Relations in North Carolina," involved more than 30 educators, religious and community leaders in the State in 12 one-half hour panel discussions. Mr. David Davis, director of WUNC-TV, Woman's College, supervised and directed the panel discussions.

A pen and ink drawing by Mr. Harold Altman, assistant professor of Art, has been chosen as one of 150 for exhibition by the Junior Council of the Museum of Modern Art in New York. This selected drawing is a realistic sketch of people walking along a Greensboro street.

"Service tickets" for ten cents a piece, sold by the Class of '59 as one of its class projects, entitled the holders (faculty and upperclassmen) to have done by the freshmen any task that was left undone, such as making beds, cleaning rooms, setting hair, baby sitting, manicuring, typing papers, etc.

The Piedmont District of the N. C. Federation of Music Clubs has originated the Grace Van Dyke More Scholarship, which will be awarded to a scholastically excellent student, preferably a college senior, who is majoring in music education and who plans to teach and direct music in city schools. Miss More was for 22 years head of the Music Education Department of the College.

The Philanthropic and Dialectic Societies from the University of North Carolina, working with NSA, are inaugurating a program for a debating society at Woman's College.

265 pints of blood were donated by faculty and students in the College's Annual Blood Donation Program, sponsored by the Service League under the auspices of the American Red Cross.

Betsy Shepard, a senior history major, is this year's recipient of the Anna Haward Shaw Scholarship, according to an announcement made on the birthday anniversary of Dr. Shaw. The late Miss Lucy B. Anthony of Moylan, Pennsylvania, established this scholarship, which is awarded annually to an outstanding student in the field of social studies, to keep alive Dr. Shaw's memory.

U P A N D D O W N T H E A V E N U E

Dr. Anne Reardon, head of the Physics Department, is the new president of the Greensboro Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, national honorary order for key women educators. Dr. Lyda Gardan Shivers, head of the Sociology Department, is second vice-president; Jessie Edwards '25 is corresponding secretary; and Ida Bella Moore '23 is treasurer.

A thirteen-piece College dance band has been organized. Anne Shipwash, a freshman, directs the group, which originated in a residence hall basement jam session last fall. The girls, most of whom are freshmen, are members of the regular College band.

Miss Betty Merideth-Jones from England conducted a three-day workshop at Woman's College on the application of basic movement in the realm of Physical Education. Miss Merideth-Jones is touring the country, teaching and demonstrating the theory of movement made so popular in England by Rudolph Laban. This theory provides that all movements, whether in dance, sports, or everyday living, stem from the four basic factors of movement—weight, space, time, and flow.

Miss Birdie H. Holloway, associate professor of Music, will be a member of a panel which will discuss the training of a music teacher at the Golden Anniversary meeting of the Music Educators National Conference in St. Louis, Missouri, in April. While she is in St. Louis, she will represent the Woman's College chapter of Pi Kappa Lambda, national music honor society, at its biennial meeting.

An annual award of $100 has been established at the College to be given to a senior with the greatest promise for teaching English in the public schools. The award, the gift of an anonymous donor, will be made primarily on the basis of ability as demonstrated in practice teaching, and for interest and motivation, academic record, and character.

A special faculty committee has been appointed to select the winner: Miss Elizabeth King, Mrs. Mary (Alford) Hunter '36, Dr. Leonard B. Hurley, Dr. Anna M. Kreimeier, and Mrs. Josephine Parker Schoeffer. The first winner is expected to be announced in May.

Miss Louise Lowe, associate professor of Home Economics and field teacher trainer in Home Economics Education, has been installed as president of the North Carolina Home Economics Association. Membership of the Association, which is affiliated with the American Home Economics Association, numbers nearly 800.

Students from Duke, Hollins, Davidson, Lynchburg, UNC, N. C. State, and Greensboro College met with representatives from Woman's College on campus in February for an International Student Relations seminar, sponsored by the National Students Association.

The 2,257 students at the College this year have come from four countries outside the Western Hemisphere (the Philippines, Greece, Norway, and India), 28 states and the District of Columbia, and 97 of the State's 100 counties.

"Faculty Responsibilities in Undergraduate Education" was the general theme of the Fourth State of the University Conference which was held on the Woman's College campus this year for the first time. The conference, "a continued experiment in self-examination," began on each of the three campuses in the Consolidated University. Local delegates discussed the theme and came to their conclusions which they then presented in a joint conference at Woman's College. The annual O. Max Gardner Dinner concluded the conference.

We note with pride that . . .

Of the twenty-three students at the College who made all A's during the first semester of this session, seven were daughters of alumnae: Ann Allmond, daughter of Kate (Tucker) Allmond '32; Lewis Kluttz, daughter of Mary (Few) Kluttz '26x; Shirley Osteen Wilcox, daughter of Martha (Hutchinson) Osteen '32; Kate and Rose Wharton, daughters of Kate (Harrison) Wharton '32; Elizabeth Efrid, daughter of Veor (Liven-good) Efrid '29; and Gilbertine Maulden, daughter of Julia (Watson) Maulden '33.

These alumnae have represented Woman's College at inaugurations, anniversaries, festivals, etc., during the fall and winter:

(1) Elizabeth (Anderson) Burnes '37: Second Annual Christian Liberal Arts Festival, Simpson College, Indianola, Iowa.

(2) Virginio (Terrell) Lothrop '32: One Hundredth Anniversary of the founding of Mars Hill College, Mors Hill, North Carolina.

(3) Norma Cofer '55: Seventieth Anniversary Convocation, University of Chattanooga, Chattanooga, Tennessee.

(4) Myrt (Padgett) Robe '43: Dedication of Portland State College and Inauguration of John Francis Cramer as first president, Portland, Oregon.

(5) Lucy (Corbett) Hamlin '44: Inauguration of Walter Consuelo Langsam as president of the University of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, Ohio.

(6) Mary Wood (Hewitt) Campbell 45: First Academic Convocation of Tufts University, Medford, Massachusetts.

(7) Edna (Groves) Heffron '41: Inauguration of Ronald C. Bauer as president of the Polytechnic Institute of Puerto Rico, San German, Puerto Rico.

Annie Scott '14 is playing an integral part in a tuberculosis detection program through which 10,000 children have been tested in the N. C. Memorial Hospital, Gravelly Sanatorium, and in a survey of public schools. She is serving as liaison pediatrician between the UNC Medical School and the Gravelly TB Sanatorium. She supervises a weekly contact clinic where children whose parents are patients in Gravelly Sanatorium and the Memorial Hospital are x-rayed, given the TB skin test, and observed for evidence of tuberculosis.

Annie has worked with children suffering from tuberculosis and tuberculus meningitis as doctor and missionary in China and in other parts of the world for 35 years. This work began in 1920, after her internship at Bellevue Hospital in New York, in Peking, China, where she was head of the Pediatric Service at Woman's Union Medical College. Her work in China was interrupted by World War II and by the Communistic Southward movement in 1949. She remained at the Medical School, which was taken by the Communists until 1951, when her regular furlough was due and the authorities granted her request to return to the United States.

Marjorie Burnes '46 was elected as the outstanding woman athlete in the Carolinas for the second year in succession. The 1955 Teague Memorial award (a distinction won through a vote of leading press, radio, and television personnel) was earned by her second straight sweep of woman's golf laurels in the two states. She won her third straight North Carolina State Amateur crown for women and her second Carolinas Women's Amateur title in succession.

Morilyn Brannon '54, stationed at Letterman Army Hospital in San Francisco, California, has been promoted to the rank of First Lieutenant. She is with the Physical Therapy section of the hospital.

Hiawatha (Neal) Cagle '27 is currently serving as regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution of North Carolina.

Ellen and Uni Kjosnes '55 have apparently won their fight against an immigration order which would have deported them to Norway. Both were in the United States on special visas, and after their graduation, they were ordered to leave this country because the Norwegian quota of immigrants was filled. The United States Senate has proposed a bill granting them permanent residence and has opened the way for their eventually becoming full-fledged citizens.

Myrtle Nicholson Coble '13x was named Alamance County's "Woman of the Year" for 1955. The award was presented on the basis of Myrtle's "devotion to the causes of building good citizenship and character through her unselfish service and outstanding leadership in educational, community, and church activities." She has helped the youth of her county through the church, Grange, 4-H Clubs, "and last but not least, her work in the classroom."

Hottie Parrott '04x is serving as the Ambassador of Good Will Through Music of the National Federation and the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs to Spain and other countries of Europe, Asia, and Africa which border on the Mediterranean Sea. She left for her trip "well-armed" with information on the aims and purposes of the federation and materials of state and national scope indicative of music in the American way of life.

Nancy (Thompson) Alexander '37x has completed a history of Caldwell County, which is entitled Here Will I Dwell. The history begins with the Indian period and ends with the present day, and it includes much material which has not been published heretofore.

Nancy has also recently compiled a book of R. L. Ishell's recollections of days following the Civil War in the Upper Yadkin Valley region between Caldwell and Wilkes Counties, called World of My Childhood.

Grace (Taylor) Rodenbough ME '52 spoke at the banquet opening the Annual Leadership Training Conference at Woman's College. She discussed the several aspects of leadership in the light of her experience in politics, education, and civic work.

Marquerite (McCollum) Mulhern '40 was featured in a "Meet the Madame President" article in the Twin City Sentinel (Winston-Salem). She is president of the 300 Forsyth County Alumnae of Woman's College. She is currently serving also as Kindergarten Chairman of AAUW and a Sunday School teacher. In addition to her "extra curricular activities," she works as Counselor with the Family and Child Service Agency of the United Fund in Winston-Salem.

Suzanne (Ketchum) Sherman '35, who designed the costumes for Paul Green's "Campan Glory" is doing a similar job for the new symphonic drama which will celebrate the 350th anniversary of the settlement of Jamestown.

Clara Booth Byrd '13, Betsy (Dupuy) Taylor '37, and Emily (Harris) Preyer '39, have been featured in "Women's Choice" articles in the Greensboro Daily News.

Clara Booth is serving her ninth year as president of the Historical Book Club, an outgrowth of a book club in the Guilford Battle Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She was our Alumnae Secretary for twenty-five years.

Betsy is serving her second term as president of the Greensboro YWCA.

Emily, in addition to her presidency of our Alumnae Association, is serving as president of the Greensboro Junior League.

Emily Bowen '54, Zora Daniel '55, Iris (Jones) Kivett '48, Elizabeth (Harrick) Mack, Jean (Floyd) Thompson '51, Anne Wall '49, and Martha Washom '55 are among the Art Personnel of the Charlotte City Schools whose works have been exhibited in the Weatherspoon Gallery at Woman's College. The exhibition included ceramics, enamels, etchings, jewelry, oil painting, serigraphs, textiles, water colors, and gouche paintings.

RESULTS OF THE 1954 ALUMNAE QUESTIONNAIRE

INTRODUCTION

As one part of the Woman's College self study program, a questionnaire was mailed out to 5577 alumnae in order to obtain their evaluation of the school and its academic offerings and to gain information about their major fields of activity since graduation. The questionnaire was sent in the Fall of 1954 to all the women who had graduated from the college since 1939, which was four years after what is essentially the present curriculum was instituted. Of the 5404 alumnae who received the questionnaire, 3238 or 59.9% eventually completed and returned it. This is an unusually high rate of return for a mailed questionnaire and is itself testimony to the interest of the alumnae in the school. That the undergraduate experience remains a meaningful one is further indicated by the similarity of the distribution of responses when grouped by year of graduation. An analysis of alumnae replying to the survey by year of graduation reveals that 886 or 29.17% had graduated in the interim 1939-1943, the period 1944-1948 furnished 1046 or 34.4%, and the final five year period 1949-1953 provided 1105 or 36.3% returning the questionnaires. The distribution of the alumnae replies by college major closely correlates with the findings of a distribution study of college majors in three graduating classes.

Tabulation of the responses was done by the Institute for Statistics at North Carolina State College and the Statistical Laboratory of the Institute for Research in the Social Sciences at the University of North Carolina. While 3042 questionnaires were returned and included in the tabulations, the analysis of written comment includes an additional 196 answers received too late to be included in tabulation of the first data. A total of 1386 graduates or 42.8% of those replying added additional comment to the questionnaire. The tone of this comment manifests the seriousness with which the alumnae considered their answers and the sense of responsibility they felt.

The survey results are presented in two parts. The first section includes the tabulated data presented under five headings; namely, What they are doing, Who went to graduate school, Why they chose their major, How they evaluate the courses, and How they evaluate the school. The second section includes the analysis of discussion and comment and it will be presented in a later issue of The Alumnae News.

WHAT THEY ARE DOING

Judging from the postmarks on the returned questionnaires, 40% of the alumnae are now living outside of North Carolina. Twenty-one per cent are single, 76.6% are married, 1.4% are divorced and 0.9% are widowed. It may be seen from the following table that the largest number of graduates married from one to four years after leaving college. Those who graduated in 1944 and after are more likely to have married before graduation than girls who graduated before this date. Students who graduated after 1949 are considered more likely than the others to have married within a year after graduation. Thus Woman's College students prove an exception to the general trend toward earlier marriage. (The fact that fewer of the more recent graduates are married simply reflects they have had less time in which to get married.) See Table I, page 14.

The next table shows that of the married alumnae who responded, 63.4% are married to men who have at least their Bachelor's Degree. Some 13.3%, however, are married to men who have had no college training at all.

About 85% of the married alumnae have children. Slightly over 50% of all alumnae report themselves to be full-time home makers, 20.3% are full-time business or professional women and 25.3% are in some way combining home making and an outside occupation. In the following table occupations are listed in rank order in terms of the percentage of alumnae pursuing them.

WHO WENT TO GRADUATE SCHOOL

Of the alumnae responding, 29.8% reported having had some graduate study. Nine per cent had earned a Master's Degree but less than one per cent had degrees beyond the master's. In a little over two-thirds of the cases, the area of the alumna's graduate study was the same as that of her undergraduate major. In the following table, departments are listed in rank order according to the percentage of their alumnae who have had one or more years of graduate study. See Table IV, page 14.

Physical Education majors led in the number of students going on for graduate training. Sociology and Biology Majors are next. Business Education and Secretarial Administration majors are least likely to have gone on for further training.

In the following table, departments are ranked with respect to the percentage of their alumnae earning advanced degrees.

*There are too few cases for the rank of these departments to be meaningful.

†The number of students receiving degrees beyond the Master's was so small as to be practically non-existent with these exceptions: Biology had 3.6%, Chemistry 3.3% and History 1.6% of their majors earning degrees beyond the Master's.

Just as more Physical Education majors have gone on to graduate school, so also have they earned higher degrees more frequently than alumnae from other departments. The rankings obtained from the two measures of advanced work are roughly the same. The most striking exception is that Sociology alumnae obtained fewer degrees than would be expected on the basis of the percentage attending graduate school. The probable reason for this is that the program leading to an M.A. in Social Work requires two years to complete rather than the usual one year.

WHY THEY CHOOSE THEIR MAJOR

Alumnae were asked on the questionnaire to check one of seven reasons for choosing their major, and to check one reason for choosing their electives. The results are presented in the following table:

VI. Reasons for Choosing Major and Reasons for Choosing Electives

Reason	For choosing major		For choosing electives
	%	No.	%	No.
Career preparation only	29.1	886	4.9	149
Partly preparation for career and cultural value	25.1	765	26.4	803
Partly preparation for career and marriage	15.7	479	4.2	127

Marriage preparation only	.2	6	.5	14
Not reported	1.3	39	3.2	97
Total	100.0	3042	100.0	3042

In spite of the fact that 50% are now housewives it is clear that Woman's College students chose their majors with a career in mind. Over 95% gave reasons in which a career was at least one of the determining factors. The "cultural value" of the major was considered by some, though usually secondarily. Electives, on the other hand were often chosen for their cultural value. It is significant that less than 1% gave "Marriage preparation" as an exclusive reason for choosing either their major or their electives. Following, departments are ranked under each possible "reason" in terms of the percentage of that department's majors giving that particular reason for choosing that department. See Table VII, page 15.

HOW THEY EVALUATE THE COURSES

Alumnae were asked to name the two subjects taken during the first two years of college which they considered most valuable and to name the two subjects taken in this same period which they considered least valuable. Of the required subjects,* English was distinctly considered the most valuable with Biology and History tying for a poor second place, each getting about one-third as many votes as English. English was also considered by the alumnae to be the required subject which contributed the most to their general cultural development. There was less agreement about the least valuable subject. Foreign Language (most notably Spanish), was most frequently named for the least valuable subject with Health, Physical Education, and History receiving the next most votes in that order, though with very little difference between them. These judgments of most and least valuable subjects do not vary depending on the year the alumna graduated. Younger alumnae agree with older ones on which subjects have proved most and least valuable to them.

The respondents were also asked to name two subjects in which they did not enroll but wish now they had, and two subjects in which they took some work but wish now that they had taken more. If we combine the two resulting distributions we get a fairly reliable ranking of subjects according to the percentage of alumnae who feel the need of them at the present time. It is important to understand that this is not a ranking of "best courses" but simply a ranking of subjects which WC graduates in their present situations and from their present perspectives feel are important for them to have some more of. There may be some bias against subjects with large numbers of majors, since a woman will not say she needs some or even more work in her major field, even though the subject is valuable to her.

*Alumnae were presented a list of 27 subjects to choose from in answering these and later questions. To some extent the number of votes a subject receives is a function of the number of students who took that course, that is, a girl could not name Music as the most valuable subject if she did not take Music. Thus, it is correct to consider only the courses that everybody or almost everybody had to take.

HOW THEY EVALUATE THE SCHOOL

There are a few marked differences with regard to subjects in which some or more work is wanted depending on whether the alumna is married or single. Married women wish they had taken business education and some or more home economics about twice as frequently as do single alumnae. The latter group indicates more desire for philosophy than married women. There is a slight statistically significant tendency for more single than married women who wish they had taken some German, political science and economics. There is a slight tendency for more single than married alumnae to wish they had taken more history and for marrieds to wish they had taken more art.

The married alumnae were asked to name the two subjects they took which contributed most to the development of their role as wife and mother. None of the required subjects, which would be expected to receive the highest percentage of votes simply because more people had taken them, received as many votes as did Psychology, Home Economics and Sociology. Of the required courses, Health received the most votes with English next. Education received the most votes after English.

In answer to the question, "If you would now select a different major, what would your choice be?" 67.5% said they would not change. Only three departments had any sizeable number of women changing to them in retrospect. The departments were, in order of the percentage wishing to change to them: Home Economics (6.8%), Business Education (5.6%), and Education (3.2%).

Almost 80% of the alumnae responding, or 2426, considered WC an "Excellent" school while almost all of the rest considered it "good." Only ten alumnae or a small fraction of 1% rated it "poor." Answers to the question, "If you have or might have, a daughter would you want to send her to Woman's College" are distributed as follows: 61% say they would want to send her to WC, 8% say they would not and 30% are undecided. From the written explanations of those who were "undecided" or would not we gather that these responses are less a reflection of their evaluation of WC than of their unwillingness to interfere with their daughters' right of "free choice of school."

There is no evidence that the valuation of the school differs depending on how long ago the woman was in college. Alumnae who graduated in 1953 rate the school as "excellent" just as frequently (actually slightly more frequently) than those who graduated in 1939. Neither is there difference in the evaluation of the college that is associated with the alumna's current occupational situation. There is a slight tendency for those combining a career with homemaking to rate the college higher than those who are either strictly homemakers or strictly careerists.

There is some tendency for alumnae who live in North Carolina to rate the school "excellent" more frequently than alumnae living out of the state. While 83% of the in-state alumnae consider the school excellent, only 75% of the alumnae living out of the state do so.

The following table shows the Departments listed in rank order according to the percentage of alumnae who majored in that department who rated the college as a whole "excellent." See Table IX, page 15.

*There are too few cases in this category to make the percentages meaningful. There seems to be some tendency, with the exception of Spanish majors, for students majoring in the strictly liberal arts portion of the curriculum to rank the school as less good than students majoring in Business Education and Secretarial Administration and in Education.

The quantitative analysis of data growing out of this alumnae study provides an important resource for evaluation and for future planning. Elucidating and reinforcing this data is the second portion of the study—the qualitative analysis, provided by spontaneously expressed opinions of 1386 alumnae covering all phases of their experience at Woman's College. This is perhaps the most interesting portion of the study by the very nature of its spontaneity and it will be presented along with a concluding summary in the next issue of the Alumnae News.

Members of the College Self-Study Committee are: Miss Shivers (Chairman), Miss Burns, Mr. Friedlaender, Mr. Godfrey, Miss Massman, Miss Newton, Miss Reardon, Miss Taylor, Miss Watkins, Miss Wolfe, Mrs. Zimmerman. The Committee is indebted to Mr. Kenneth S. McCutchan for assistance in preparing the questionnaire and to Mrs. Miriam Massey Johnson for her assistance in preparing the report.

Hello, Alumnae:

Here we are at the threshold of another commencement. Please mark the dates of June 1, 2, and 3rd on your calendar, and I shall certainly look forward to seeing you for a gay week-end.

Emily Harris Preyer

ASSOCIATIONAL BUSINESS

ELECTION: It is very important that you keep-up-with this issue of THE ALUMNAE NEWS until after you have received your BALLOT, marked it, and mailed it back to the Alumnae Office. The ballots will be mailed soon after THE NEWS has reached you. All of the biographical information which is printed on pages 16 and 17 of this issue will not be repeated on the ballot. You will use THE NEWS as your "reference book" to guide you in voting. Mark your ballot and mail it immediately. To be counted all ballots must be received in the Alumnae Office by May 10.

COMMENCEMENT WEEKEND . . . FUN and INFORMALITY: May we repeat President Emily Preyer's request that you circle June 1, 2, and 3 on your calendar!

College Commencement Program

(See Alumnae Program in the next column.)

Saturday, June 2

Class Day on Front Campus at 4:30 p.m. . . . Concert: College Choir and Greensboro Orchestra in Aycock Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. . . . Senior Ball in the Elliott Hall Ballroom at 8:30 p.m.

Sunday, June 3

Baccalaureate Sermon* in Aycock Auditorium at 10:30 a.m. . . . Faculty Reception for Seniors, Parents, Alumnae, and Friends in Elliott Hall immediately following the Sermon . . . Graduating Exercises† on the lawn in front of the Library at 6:00 p.m.

The new and newly-decorated buildings on campus will be open on both Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

Four Occasions

have been planned for the Spring by the Undergraduate Relations Committee in an effort to "prepare the undergraduates for membership in our Association":

(1) The Daughters of Alumnae (see page 6) will be entertained at a Coffee Hour on April 18.

(2) The Freshman Class will have a "special" class meeting in the Virginia Dare Room during April. Refreshments will be served by the Alumnae Association.

(3) Following the "Lost Mass Meeting" on May 1, the Seniors will meet in the Alumnae House for the annually sponsored Alumnae Party.

(4) On May 8 the Commercial Class of 1956 will be informally entertained in the Virginia Dare Room.

Although Saturday, June 2, will be OUR BIG DAY, festivities will really begin on Friday. Come on and register Friday afternoon or evening, enjoy the Coffee Hour in the Virginia Dare Room from 8:00 p.m. until 10:00 p.m., and spend the night in one of the Residence Halls. Don't YOU be the one to regret on Saturday that you didn't come on Friday and take advantage of the "overnight" invitation. As far as possible, classes will be assigned rooms in the same vicinity. Throughout the weekend you may eat in the College Dining Halls for a very nominal charge.

Registration (and it's very important this year) will continue in the Alumnae House on Saturday morning until 10:00. Because we've outgrown the Virginia Dare Room, our ANNUAL ALUMNAE MEETING will be held in the Elliott Hall Ballroom at 10:00 (Saturday morning). The program will include: a Guest Speaker (check your local newspapers for Announcement), election results, committee progress reports, surprise announcements . . . and will end with a parade, so wear comfortable shoes.

All of us will "lunch" together at noon, but each reunion class will have a special place all its own. Since the Alumnae really come back to see the College, we believe that you'll enjoy staying on campus to eat, instead of having to move to an off-campus location. And spirit and fellowship certainly will benefit from our staying all-together in the Freshman Quadrangle. There will be a place for non-reunioners and guests, too, and banners, crepe paper streamers will set the stage for a Field Day. Wear "non-perishable," comfortable, informal clothes. The lunches will be in BOXES, prepared by caterers . . . our aim is "an old-fashioned picnic."

For the OLD GUARD only: Mrs. Graham is planning her party for YOU at the Chancellor's House at 4:00 on Saturday afternoon.

The ALUMNAE SUPPER, which certainly needs no explanation, will be on the Elliott Hall Terrace at 6:00 p.m. This is the only occasion which will approach "dress-up."

The COST: room	nothing
luncheon	$ 1.50 per BOX
supper	$ 2.00 per PLATE
registration fee	$ 1.00 (for incidentals)

Total $ 4.50 . . . not very much for the gala time that's being planned for you.

You will receive further notice about the weekend and a reservation blank around the first of May. Be on the lookout for it. Return it to the Alumnae Office immediately so that your name may be "put in all the pots."

*Mr. David R. Falls, Headmaster, Asheville School, Asheville, North Carolina, will preach the Baccalaureate Sermon.

†Tickets for Alumnae will be available at Registration.

Reports from the Outposts

Atlanta, Georgia

On January 20, the Atlanta Chapter of the Woman's College Alumnae Association met in the home of Peggy (Guin) Hurst '46. The president, Nancy (Phifer) Upshaw '47, called the meeting to order, and Ann Keeter '45 read the minutes of the last meeting. The treasurer, Pot (Hubbard) McLeon '50, reported that $24.00 had been received for dues and that a complete financial report would be given at the next meeting. It was announced that Dr. Graham and Barbara Parrish plan to be present at the next meeting.

For a report on the progress made for raising the scholarship fund and a discussion of several proposed projects, the meeting was turned over to Betty (Hufham) Ainsworth '52, Chairman of the Fund Committee. Following the discussion the group voted to permit Mrs. Ainsworth to decide on the project most suitable and to make plans to carry out the project.

After the business meeting, the hostesses served cake and coffee.

Irene B. Altmaier,
for the Secretary

Warwick, Virginia

A meeting of Woman's College Alumnae in the Warwick, Virginia, area was held in October (1955) at the Earle Restaurant. Seventeen alumnae attended the dinner meeting and Mr. C. W. Phillips, Director of Public Relations at the College, spoke. No permanent chapter organization was undertaken by the group present.

Alumnae Representatives

Woman's College alumnae representatives who will aid in the selection of recipients of the Aubrey Lee Brooks Scholarship Awards are: Iris (Holt) McEwen, Alamance County; Ruth (Anderson) Hadgkin, Caswell County; Elizabeth (Reeves) Lyon, Durham County; Annie Lee (Stafford) Greenfield, Forsyth County; Louise (Donnenbaum) Falk, Guilford County; Groce (Mewbarn) Aycock, Orange County; Jone (Paschal) Thoxton, Person County; Saro (Hunt) Ferguson, Rockingham County; and Valeria (Jockson) Shuford, Surry County.

DON'T throw your ALUMNAE NEWS away! Put it in your school or town library, your husband's office, your doctor's or dentist's office . . . anywhere, but somewhere that others may see it and learn of Woman's College.

Changes in Music Curriculum

A complete revision of the curriculum of the School of Music, effective in September, 1956, will (1) enable music majors to take more courses outside the department, (2) bring music teaching methods up-to-date with those used in other universities, and (3) enable non-music majors to take more courses in music.

Music majors will be permitted to take electives within the department, as well as 35 to 50 hours of electives outside the department. Non-music majors will be given credit for participation in the various ensemble groups and bands, and music literature courses will be open to them.

The new curriculum will offer three types of BA degrees: applied music, music literature, and theory. The new degree will enable the student who is not planning to study for performance or teaching to obtain background for work where some musical training is required.

Three new types of BM degrees will be offered: music history and literature, composition, and voice with opera and oratorio concentration, in addition to the already existing major in any instrument, voice, or music education. In all sequences except voice and music history, the basic requirement of two years of foreign language will be removed. Voice majors will still be required to take the basic foreign languages, and opera and oratorio majors German, French, and Italian. French and German will be required for the music history and literature majors.

The program for music education majors is also undergoing change. Theory courses will be slanted toward more practical application in teaching for the student, and training in orchestral instruments will begin in the freshman year.

We now have a Chapter

A chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, the Epsilon Chapter of North Carolina and the fifth one in the State, was installed at Woman's College on February 17. Professor William T. Hastings of Brown University, president of the United Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa, and Mr. Carl Billman, its secretary, conducted the installation.

In 1931 an Honor Society, fostering scholarship among the students, was organized, and liberal arts students were elected to membership as nearly as possible on the basis of Phi Beta Kappa eligibility requirements. Then in 1934 a section of the Alpha Chapter of North Carolina at the University at Chapel Hill was installed and organized. Of the eighteen members of the faculty who were charter members of the section, twelve, who are either on the faculty now or who reside in Greensboro, were among the twenty-seven charter members of the Chapter.

The Woman's College section began efforts to secure a charter more than three years ago. The petition for a chapter was approved by the Triennial Council of Phi Beta Kappa in Minneapolis, Minnesota, in September, 1955. Our Chapter was one of three approved by the Council.

Among the guests for the installation, in addition to Professor Hastings and Mr. Billman, were: Mr. William Friday, acting President of the University of North Carolina; Dean Ernest L. Mackie, of the University; Dean James Cannon, of Duke University; Professor J. Wilson McCutchan, of Davidson College; and Mrs. Lillian Parker Wallace, secretary of the Phi Beta Kappa Alumni Association of Wake County.

There are forty-five members of Phi Beta Kappa at the College. The officers of the Chapter are: President, Miss Florence Schaffer; Vice-President, Dr. Leonard B. Hurley; Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. John E. Bridgers; Recording Secretary, Miss Joylee Montague '51.

Have you moved? Please notify the Alumnae Office of your change of address.

. . . About a Danish College Dormitory

(from The Kinston (N. C.) Daily Free Press)

Editor's note: Sarah Beth Hearn '55 received a grant from the American-Scandinavian Foundation for a year's study of music in Scandinavia. She has been studying the Danish language, history, and culture at the University of Copenhagen and the University of Engleholm in Jutland, Denmark. To help in speaking the language, Sarah Beth has had the privilege of living in the homes of two very talented families for three-week periods. This article written by her was addressed as a letter to her "Fellow Kinstonians."

"Mange hilsener" from my adopted country, Denmark, where people truly feel sorry for anyone who is not a Dane by birth, marriage, or some possible way, but tease each other constantly for having acquired so royal a position themselves.

It is a country where the educational and social welfare programs are of such complexity that an explanation of them to foreigners is virtually impossible (even the Danes wonder about them at times); and where a visitor may stand in Copenhagen's Rådhusplads (Town Hall Square) and rub elbows with people from every country in the world, and it is very probable that a pair of those elbows belongs to Denmark's beloved King Frederick IX, who strolls through the city sometimes.

Here, also, the word "Carlsberg" represents the highest achievements of art and sculpture, as well as that refreshing beverage which makes a Dane's day typically Danish—beer (the latter does not hold for the Danish ladies, so I have been informed). Here, the old world's culture maintains its superiority over the modern world's scientific splendor with ease and grace, as well as healthy interest. All of these truths one may find in this beautiful, gracious country that sets high and worthy standards for its European neighbors.

Being a student myself, one of my main interests is looking into as many sections of the University and the Folkhjskoles as I can. One such visit repaid me with material on an unusual building, dear to the hearts of the Danish people, and envied by the rest of Europe.

This extraordinary social feat is the Egmont H. Petersens Kollegium, a modern student dormitory in winter and a hotel with superior accommodations for foreign guests in summer. When I say "social feat," I mean precisely that. The Kollegium is an endowed and self-governing institution under the University of Copenhagen, and aside from one small students' residence in Finland, it is the only dormitory of its kind in Europe. As in the case of the Vy-Carlsberg Glyptek, one of the scenic wonders of French and Danish art in Copenhagen, this Kollegium is backed by a never-diminishing fund from Gutenberghus, the largest printing and magazine-publishing firm in Denmark.

Egmont H. Petersen, printer to the King, provided in his will that part of the surplus from the businesses he had created should in the future be devoted to purposes of public benefit. The Egmont H. Petersens Fond, owner of Gutenberghus, carries out his aim with the Egmont H. Petersens Kollegium. Few men have such a worthy and thriving institution operating in their name.

One interesting, and very practical, aspect of this Kollegium is the metamorphosis which occurs when the students leave for their "sommer-ferie." Our Kollegium becomes the Egmont Hotel with students staying over as hall-porters, waitresses, bartenders, and reception clerks in order to serve each summer's "full-house" of foreign guests. (The money from this period goes back to the student's house.) To illustrate its popularity, Herr Christensen, director of the Kollegium, explained to me that a group of American students planning to visit Denmark next summer will be very disappointed to learn that such is the overflow of guests that ample space for them is unavailable, even at this early date!

My day at the Kollegium was perfect, because the secretary of the institution directed Fru Cock-Clausen, whose husband is secretary of Gutenberghus, Gorgen Ulrick Nielsen, the youngest son in the family of Herr Elaf Nielsen, with whom I am living at the present, and myself, through the two completed buildings of the Kollegium. (When the third part is finished, there will be overall accommodations for five hundred students plus a modern restaurant for them.)

We first visited the Hansens, a young married couple studying medicine, who have a beautifully decorated two-room apartment. As in our own college dormitories, all extra curricular furniture is provided by the student, and in Denmark, where there is such a fondness for flowers, each room resembles a well-kept solarium, bright and cheerful. The Hansens will live in their apartment for two more years. Then, as their three-year period will be up, they will move out to accommodate some other students. In this way more students may have a chance to enjoy the Kollegium.

After saying "thank you" to our couple, we peeked into a girl's single room which shared a separate restroom and shower with an adjoining single room. Being a girl, the main object to attract my attention in each room was the telephone which is used for inside calls. (If this were common practice in American colleges, the girls would never get to class at all.) Our lively guide led us next into a very important part of student life—the kitchen. Each of the building's eight floors has its own kitchen with private drawers for each room. The students decorate these rooms themselves, so there is a touch of home in them.

There are many luxurious features to the Kollegium. These include glassed-in, soundproof practice rooms for musicians and friends (naturally they had to propel me away from them), a modern gymnasium for ladies and gentlemen, a ham's dream—the radio and tape recording room, private writing and typing rooms—and I could go on and on.

Along the practical side, we found that each floor was provided with ironing and washing facilities. As we were leaving the ironing room, a small piece of metal attached between the door frame and the door caught my attention. My host explained, with a twinkle in his eyes, that some few students were not the best in the world as far as memory was concerned. Therefore, to prevent any unnecessary blazes, this little gadget, appropriately named "idiots contact," automatically cuts off all electricity in the room when the student goes out the door. (Later, I wondered if the students had to lock the door from the inside until they were finished, because each time someone came in, the electricity would cut off. Well, I shall learn that at some future time.)

Nearing the end of our delightful tour, we viewed Copenhagen from the rooftop veranda, then wandered down to the comfortable lounge where students were chatting or watching TV. Yes, TV does exist over here. There, I had a chance to speak to an American student who was recuperating from a strong attack of polio and who had been receiving aid from his fellow Danish students. If his friends could have heard his glowing words of praise as I did, they would have been shocked, most likely, for in Denmark everyone is naturally concerned over the enjoyment of a foreign visitor and no one thinks about it.

We said "farvel" to our wonderful hosts and our new friends who had taken time out to explain their magnificent program to us. It was a treat that I would not have missed for the world. Only one thing disturbs me—Denmark has so many sights such as this one—when will I see them all? If, and when I do, I shall certainly let you know about them.

Venlig hilsen,
Sarah Beth.

SEEDS ARE THEIR BUSINESS . . .

MABEL ROBERTS '41

by Randolph S. Hancock
(from The Charlotte Observer)

Dateline: Marshville

Miss Mabel Roberts came here to stay six weeks. That was in 1949.

Lespedeza was heavy with seeds. The clovers looked promising, so did alfalfa.

The farmers, the seedsmen said they needed a permanent analyst. So Miss Roberts wrote the North Carolina Department of Agriculture that she wouldn't return to her job in the state seed testing laboratory.

It has been both an interesting and profitable six years for Miss Roberts who, as a graduate of Woman's College in 1941, was "determined not to be a school teacher."

To be a seeds analyst you have to love nature, and know botany. Too, you must like tedious work.

For three and four hours at a time, without leaving her chair, Miss Roberts sits before her laboratory desk looking through high-powered glasses at seeds—seeds that are samples from those which you may plant in your field next season, your vegetable garden, or your flower borders.

The analysis goes further. When they have been tested for purity, she sends them through the germination tests. This test tells the farmer, the gardener what per cent of germination he may expect under favorable weather conditions.

She works three to four months ahead of planting seasons. December, January, and February are the heaviest months. "I take Christmas day off," Miss Roberts said.

When summer comes, the crops are growing, she has time to sew, to look after her own garden, raise a world of flowers. You name the flower, the vegetable, Miss Roberts has it.

Her seeds?

"My Scotch nature," said she, "won't let me throw seeds away."

The seed samples roll into her office daily from throughout North Carolina and South Carolina and some six other nearby states.

"Mostly, though," she said, "I do seed testing for this area."

Piedmont North Carolina and South Carolina being big grain producing areas, she's right in the midst of her work.

Seed testing, for purity and germination, is an exacting science. It's necessary to know seeds—not merely the difference between a grain of corn and a grain of wheat but all seeds even the noxious ones.

Miss Roberts knows each one by sight.

After their purity has been established, then germination must be determined.

That's where you—the purchaser of seeds—come in.

Her seed laboratory is set up so that she can turn natural conditions on, for a particular seed, any time.

Right now, Miss Roberts is testing rye grass, oats, and the clovers, and horticultural beans.

By refrigeration, she produces the cool days of October and

by Bette Elliott
(from The Raleigh Times)

One of the country's foremost seed analysts is an attractive Oxford native who began her State career as a secretary.

Magdalene Brummitt, Seed Analyst III with the State Agriculture Department made the switch from the typewriter to the laboratory in 1939. She had been "Girl Friday" to the head of the lab, and became so fascinated with his work that she decided seeds and their mysteries were much more interesting.

In 1950, Miss Brummitt left Raleigh to go with the Beltsville Research Center near Washington and later transferred to the Federal Seed Lab in New Brunswick, N. J. She came back "home" two years ago.

One of her contributions to the State's seed collection is a scientifically catalogued herbarium. She has just finished this project.

A seed analyst, to be a good one, must have a sharp eye as well as a good memory. Sometimes a batch of seeds will come in from a farmer or dealer with a few strange particles tossed in with it. Miss Brummitt is called upon to name these rarities, and she seldom misses.

She can name common seeds at a glance. For instance, a pile of oat seeds sat on a table in her lab, and a few grains were pushed to one side. "That's barley . . . over there is the seed of a noxious weed, and this one is a wild onion," she said without hesitation. If that particular batch showed too much "foreign matter," Miss Brummitt would turn thumbs down on its purity. The State, of course, is mighty particular when it comes to its crops.

November when rye grass sprouts come up to make your lawn green during winter.

To make the seeds sprout (if they will germinate), she rolls them in paper towels, blotters, and some she puts in dishes. It all depends upon the kind of seeds she's working with.

For instance: Oats like fairly small amounts of water. She uses a paper towel for these seeds.

Red clover is a hard seed. It takes a lot of water to make these seeds germinate. Miss Roberts uses blotting paper for red clover.

The germination temperature is just right, and the seeds have had the correct amount of "rest."

"You know," said she, "seeds have to rest between the time they mature and the normal time of planting. That's why oats, for instance, that have matured won't sprout if they are blown down until planting time."

There aren't many men in this profession. It's understandable. It's like fine sewing. Patience is required to handle mustard seed, tobacco seed.

"It's fun," said Miss Roberts. "Too, I guess I'm just a farmer."

There's another fine crop of Lespedeza this year. And that makes Miss Roberts happy.

But I took advantage of being over and saw quite a bit of both France and England. What a relief after visiting in D. C. to get back to our air conditioned city. Living here really spoils one. Went on my first base camp trip also last summer and climbed a 13,600 foot mountain—one without the benefit of a trail. To sleep under the stars at an altitude of 10,000 feet or so is an experience I will not soon forget. Of course we will go again this summer but it is the first time that is exciting."
